Flood Precautions Sought Along Brodheads

COMPLETION OF POCONO Motor Freight Terminal, which will be operated by William Osborn, is expected by the end of November. The terminal will be located on Route 209 west of the Stroudsburg borough limits. It will be able to handle a million pounds of less-than-carload freight each week. This sketch was drawn by Robert Logan at the request of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, one of the groups instrumental in pushing for Interstate Commerce Commission approval of the plan. The ICC announced its approval this week.

ICC Approves Pocono Motor Freight Terminal; Opening Scheduled For Late In November

A LARGE motor freight terminal capable of handling up to 1,000,000 pounds of less-than-carload freight a week will be opened here sometime in November.

Harold A. Swenson, executive secretary, Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, said last night the terminal will be operated by William Osborn, owner of a local contract trucking firm.

Construction of a motor freight terminal, which will be located at some point west of the Stroudsburg borough limits on Route 209, was first proposed about two years ago by the Monroe County Manufacturers Association and the Chamber.

Community Advisers

"The Pocono Motor Freight Terminal is unique," said Swenson, "in that it is one of the first applications to come before the ICC which has been supported in its entirety by various community organizations having no financial interests." While the terminal technically is a commercial enterprise, Swenson said its operations will be supervised by a community advisory committee which will guide its policies. The committee will be composed of Chamber representatives, local shippers and community leaders.

"We feel very definitely that the terminal will help to relieve congestion in the business sections of both boroughs a great deal," commented Swenson. "It is our hope that deliveries to local merchants can be completed prior to 9:30 each morning."

Pick Up Service

Swenson explained that goods will be picked up from local industrial plants and business places in easily-manueverable "city-type" trucks and brought to the terminal.

At the terminal, he said, interstate haulers will pick up the goods and deliver them to distant points.

At the same time, interstate trucking firms will deliver goods consigned to local merchants directly to the terminal, Swenson said. Deliveries will be made to merchants by Osborn's trucks.

"This is not a local delivery service," Swenson stressed, pointing out that both pick-ups and deliveries will not be made within the boroughs.

The new operations will mean that two or more trucks carrying goods to a single firm can unload at the terminal, and a single "city-type" vehicle can make a one delivery to the consignee, Swenson disclosed.

To Speed Dispatch

This, of course, eliminates the need for several deliveries to a single company at different inter-

"It's estimated that the terminal will save one or more days between pick-up and destination," he continued, "because freight will be placed on the long-distance carrier the first night."

Arrangements have already been completed between Osborn and seven long-line carriers who wish to use the terminal's facilities. It's expected that twice that number will have their trucks pull into the terminal within two months after its opening.

"Long-line haulers will pay Osborn for use of his equipment and facilities out of their regular point-

State Removes Ban On Water This Morning

STATE HEALTH authorities early today lifted the ban on use of water for human consumption in the area served by the Monroe County Water Supply Co.

The territory served by the company covers all of Stroudsburg and parts of adjacent sections.

Bernard F. Bush, regional sanitary engineer, with offices in Wilkes-Barre, telephoned H. B. Reese, field engineer, late last night and notified him to release the water for drinking, cooking and other uses.

Reese immediately notified William Curnow, operating manager of the Monroe County Water Supply Co., and also informed The Daily Record of the release.

Lab Tests Okay

Reese said the laboratory tests of water samples taken during the past 10 days show "satisfactory results" and thus the water could be cleared for drinking and cooking.

Lifting of the ban comes just four weeks after Stroudsburg's main water supply system was wrecked by the rampaging flood waters of Brodheads Creek. Considerable work at the Stokes Mill pumping station, together with laying of new pipe to replace torn-out sections, required workmen to remain on duty almost constantly in order to complete the gigantic task.

After the repairs were made, the main had to be flushed out with a chlorine solution to remove traces of flood contamination. Water samples were then taken at regular intervals and at a number of locations. This was done by state sanitary engineers working under Mr. Bush and Mr. Reese.

It was only after state laboratory tests showed the water to be free of contamination that the ban was removed.

Flushing Advised

State authorities advised water consumers who are moving back to homes that were in the flood sections to flush out all water outlets for several minutes before using the water for human consumption.

Removal of the ban follows by one day the lifting of a similar order in East Stroudsburg and Shawnee.

Action Hinges On Surveys By Army, FCDA

U. S. ARMY Engineers last night were asked to take temporary precautions along Brodheads Creek and its tributaries until permanent flood control work is approved by the State.

The request was made at a joint meeting of both borough councils, the county commissioners and Barrett Township officials.

Plans Inspection

Capt. Keith Comstock, area engineer, U. S. Corps of Engineers, agreed to look over strategic areas of the Brodheads this morning, accompanied by Edward C. Hess, engineer for the county and both boroughs, and other area officials.

However, Comstock made it clear that the Army Engineers would have to get a green light from the Federal Civil Defense Agency, administrator of Public Law 875 which provides for emergency temporary relief in disaster areas to prevent further loss of life or property.

Comstock was unable to say when an FCDA representative would be available to survey the situation.

Stroudsburg Burgess Hal Harris suggested that, in an effort to ward off any delay, temporary work should be done with the two boroughs and the county sharing the cost equally.

Cost Estimated

The borough engineer estimated it would cost between $50,000 to $75,000 to get the temporary work completed.

Comstock made it clear that "the farther away we get from the flood, the harder it will be to get money under an emergency request."

Temporary work, it was explained, involves removing debris from Brodheads, Pocono and Bushkill creeks to prevent future flooding of the lowlands. It also involves repairs to dikes which were damaged by the floods.

Stream Bed Moved

If the work was okayed by the FCDA, Comstock said, the Army Engineers would contract to have the temporary repairs made.

Meanwhile, Barrett Township officials expressed the fear a "serious" condition exists in Brodheads Creek. "They said the stream bed has been moved in several places and a washout in Canadaensis would divert the stream in the event of high water and allow it to flow down into the village."

Rep. Van D. Yetter, present at last night's meeting, said it is the State's intention to make money available for flood protection. However, he was unable to say when that money will be available.

Two Americans Admit Spying

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 15 (AP)—Two American war veterans said tonight they worked as Soviet spies in Western Europe for six months in a self-conceived plot "to serve our country by infiltrating Russian intelligence."

They accused the U. S. Central Intelligence Agency of "gross malfeasance" because it did not hire them as double agents after they voluntarily disclosed they had been in Russian espionage.

Theo. K. Hollie, 28, of Los Angeles, and Gregory J. Lima, 30, of New York, told newsmen the Russians paid them $6000 for spy missions in Europe.

Bureau Of Waters Making Survey Of Creek Channels

ENGINEERS FROM the Bureau of Waters, Department of Forests and Waters have been in this area for some time making channel surveys of streams involved in the Aug. 18-19 flood, District Forester E. C. Pyle said yesterday.

All work of this type not coming within the scope of "emergency and temporary" operations allowed under the laws governing work done by the U. S. Army's Corps of Engineers should be referred direct to Thomas Matthews, chief engineer, Bureau of Waters, Department of Forests & Waters, Harrisburg, Pa., Mr. Pyle said.

Instructions Given

In making reports on stream stoppages on or adjacent to properties in flood areas, Mr. Pyle said, the name of the stream, county and township property owner's name as well as distance and direction from nearest town or village highway intersection or other means of location should be clearly designated.

Such reports Mr. Pyle said will help alleviate the work of searching surveys in connection with plans for permanent work on stream channels. All possible means of describing location should be used the district forester said so the trouble spots can be located from the ground.

The local Department of Forests & Waters office in Stroudsburg is purely a Bureau of Forests office, Mr. Pyle emphasized. It is not handling the work of the Bureau of Waters at this stage of the restoration operations.

Report To Harrisburg

There is no local State Bureau of Waters office set up at this time in the Monroe County area. For that reason, Pyle said, requests for stream channeling must be sent to the Harrisburg office for quick processing.

Pyle said that major repairs

Orders Placed For 20,000 Extra Copies

SOME 20,000 extra copies of The Daily Record's "Recovery Edition," due to be published September 24 were ordered before the deadline closed the special ordering process yesterday afternoon.

People who are subscribers on September 24 will get their copy of the flood edition.

There will be no more orders accepted for the special edition covering every facet of the area flood with pictures and stories and all phases of the rehabilitation and recovery of the communities in the flood area.

Mail orders for extra copies must bear a September 15 postmark. Others cannot be filled.

Information about such permits should also be requested from Chief Engineer, Department of Forests & Waters, Harrisburg, he said.

White House Raps Leader For 'Underworld' Remark

DENVER, Sept. 15 (AP)—The White House slapped back at a Democratic governor today for saying President Eisenhower would serve as the "captivity" of an "ugly underworld" in the Republican party if re-elected.

Murray Snyder, assistant press secretary, told newsmen that Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania "struck out" in a San Francisco Democratic dinner speech last night which was sharply critical of the President.

"I am aware," Snyder said, "of an underworld that has opposed the Republican party in various elections."

Asked for an elaboration of that remark, Snyder shot back at the reporter.

"Did you ever hear of Frank Costello?"

Costello is a New York underworld character who is under sentence of five years imprisonment for evasion of $39,000 federal income taxes.

"My speech last night was entirely on foreign policy," Leader said in Los Angeles, "and I was referring to the hard core of isolationists who form the Republican right wing and secretly are at work against a constructive foreign policy."

"I thought the use of the word 'underworld' was a good, graphic figure of speech to indicate what is actually going on in the Republican party."

Snyder said "that statement is more involved" than Leader's own remarks about the "underworld." The press secretary added that to him "the term 'underworld' means criminal element."

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration is

"building something that is really unique—a millionaire's party," Democratic Gov. George M. Leader of Pennsylvania charged to-night.

GOP Replies

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 15 (AP)—Pennsylvania Republicans fired back at Gov. Leader today for his all-out attack on President Eisenhower.

Leading the assault on the Democratic governor was Sen. Duff who said in a statement:

"Up to now Gov. Leader has failed miserably to measure up to his responsibility. . . . Consequently, he merely makes himself ridiculous to everyone who knows his Pennsylvania record by endeavoring to tell President Eisenhower how to run the United States."

Red Premier Bulganin Ill

MOSCOW, Sept. 15 (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin is ill, the Soviet news agency Tass reported today.

He was too ill to meet a Finnish delegation headed by President Juho K. Paasikivi and Prime Minister Urho Kekkonen when they arrived in Moscow today. He may be unable to participate in negotiations with East German Prime Minister Otto Grotewohl to begin tomorrow.

Tass did not say what ailment the 60-year-old Premier is suffering nor did the Finns learn it when Kekkonen was told Bulganin would be unable to receive a formal courtesy call.

It is extremely unusual for the illness of any Soviet official to be made public.

West Germans Hold Fast To Major Goals

BONN, Germany, Sept. 15 (AP)—The West German government held fast tonight to its goals of German unity and a peace treaty settlement of the Eastern frontier despite twin rebuffs from Moscow.

A Bonn spokesman said the Germans had expected the rebuffs. They were in a Soviet government statement which rejected two of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's claims—advanced in writing and orally—in his Moscow talks.

These were (1) Germany's final frontier can be determined only by a peace treaty; and (2) his is the only government qualified to speak for all Germany.

"The West German position is still as it was laid down by Chancellor Adenauer in his letters to Soviet Premier Bulganin," the Bonn spokesman said in comment on the Russian statement, issued through the Soviet news agency Tass.

Navy Calls For Draft Of 10,000 Men

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Navy today asked for 10,000 draftees in November—the first time it has invoked the draft since World War II.

This will raise the overall Selective Service quota for the month to 20,000 men since the Army is currently asking for 10,000 a month.

The Navy said it plans to call 10,000 monthly through April—except for January when none will be called—then drop to 6,000 in May and that it hopes inductees will not be needed beyond next June.

A Navy statement said it had to resort to the draft because of the rapid loss of men who came into service during the Korean War. It said:

Navy Buildup

"The rapid buildup of the Navy during the first year of the Korean conflict brought large numbers of men into the Navy during a relatively short period of time. Because of the unusually large number of expirations of the enlistments which will occur during the next several months, the regular input of first enlistment men into the Navy will be augmented by the utilization of Selective Service procedures beginning in November."

The Navy said the regular four-year voluntary enlistment program "will be energetically prosecuted and the augmentation by Selective Service will be continued only as necessary to maintain authorized strength during the period over which separations from the service are abnormally high."

A Defense Department announcement said the Air Force and Marine Corps will place no draft calls during November.

Cabinet Resigns

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Peruvian Cabinet resigned today to give President Manuel Odría a free hand in reorganization of the government.

C Of C Plans Registration Of Persons Needing Houses

THE POCONO MOUNTAINS Chamber of Commerce is launching a program aimed at finding housing for flood victims.

Families in need of such assistance are urged to register with the Chamber, which is setting up a desk for that purpose at the East Stroudsburg Fire Station.

The registration center will be in operation from 5 to 8 p. m. today, from 2 to 6:30 p. m. tomorrow, from 2 to 6 p. m. Sunday, and from 5 to 8 p. m. Monday.

May Register At Office

The above hours have been designed to enable workers to register without taking time off their jobs.

In addition, persons may register each day at the Chamber office at 723 Main St., Stroudsburg.

The registration program was set up at the request of the Red Cross and local officials. Information gathered during the registration will be used by the State in determining plans for rehabilitation and assistance. It is therefore important for persons in need of housing to register with the Chamber.

To Determine Needs

Chamber officials emphasized it has no idea of the scope of the problem. The number of returned forms will indicate the local needs.

The Chamber has set up and is expanding a file of available rental housing. It will work in close cooperation with the Red Cross on the financial aspects involved, Chamber officials said.

Tax-On-Tax Bill Drafted By State Democrats For Test In Supreme Court

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15 (AP)—A proposal for a state tax on every Pennsylvania's federal income tax was given renewed consideration today by Democratic leaders.

"We all know there is some doubt about the constitutionality of such a levy, but we believe we should let the Supreme Court decide the matter as soon as possible," said Rep. Albert S. Readinger, House Democratic floor leader.

Discussed With Leader

Readinger said the proposal has been discussed "informally" with Gov. Leader as a partial solution to the Commonwealth's fiscal problems.

"I know of only one reason why he (Leader) would oppose it," Readinger said. "That would be an opinion from the attorney general that the proposal is unconstitutional."

During the 1953 General Assembly, a Republican attorney general advised former Gov. Fine that such a tax would violate the uniformity clause of Pennsylvania's Constitution.

Meanwhile, House Speaker H.G. Andrews was reportedly drafting a bill calling for such a levy for introduction after next Monday's bipartisan tax conference with the governor.

5 Per Cent

At that time, the Pennsylvania Economy League, a non-partisan study group, is expected to provide a budget breakdown for Republican and Democratic leaders.

On the basis of these figures, the compromise group will consider possible taxes to meet state expenses for the next two years.

Ione Swings Westerly; Speed Rises

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 15 (AP)—The Atlantic hurricane, Ione, swung hard around toward the west-northwest late today and stepped up her forward speed to about 22 miles an hour.

The storm was centered 350 miles north of San Juan, P. R., and 875 miles east-southeast of Miami. While her new course pointed her 80-mile winds in the general direction of the U. S. mainland, forecasters declared it too early to say whether she will reach the coast.

A second hurricane in the Caribbean Sea, Hilda, continued to churn westward, aiming her 100-mile winds at the lonely stretches of the Yucatan peninsula.

Hits Peninsula

The storm's outer gales started raking the Yucatan peninsula in the early evening, and the eye with peak winds wrapped around it was expected to cross the coast in the area where British Honduras connects with Mexico's Quintana Roo Province around midnight.

Both hurricanes, eighth and ninth of the year, became puzzlers as they swept along.

Hilda has sufficient energy to carry her across Yucatan and into the southern Gulf of Mexico. Forecasters said it remained to be seen whether she would be able to regenerate after her encounter with land, and again become a threatening storm.

Godfrey Cancels Airlines Show

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—An airlines show starring Arthur Godfrey was called off today after the city refused to allow him to land a helicopter on top a new West Side airlines terminal.

Godfrey's flying ability was not questioned, a terminal spokesman said, but the city doesn't like helicopter operations near the heavily traveled West Side highway. It recently denied the New York Port Authority permission to build a heliport beside the highway.

Concert Group Plans Drive For Members

THE LOCAL organization of Community Concerts will open its current campaign September 26 with headquarters in the Penn-Stroud Hotel. As in previous years, the local committee workers will solicit concert memberships from Monday through Saturday.

Officers of Pocono Community Concerts and campaign workers will meet with William Miles, district representative of Community Concerts at 7 p. m. Sept. 23 in headquarters here.

At this meeting plans will be discussed for bringing membership to past members and to acquaint prospective members with the organization's plan to bring outstanding musical performers to the Stroudsburg.

For many years the communities of Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and surrounding areas have had unusual success in presenting fine artists and high quality music in this area, officers said yesterday.

Am this year is to continue this high standard of service, they said.

Safest Soldier Nearest Enemy

LONDON, Sept. 15 (AP)—A three-day British army exercise to test troops under nuclear warfare conditions has shown that the safest man is the one closest to the enemy.

So said Lt. Gen. Sir Ernest E. Down, director of the exercises, who explained the reason is "because the enemy obviously will not drop an atomic bomb near his own troops."

Seek German Coal

THE HAGUE, Sept. 15 (AP)—Holland wants to go underground into West Germany. The idea is to get more coal from the Princess Beatrix mine in Limburg province with a tunnel extending into German territory. Bonn permission is being sought.

PTA Presents Projector To Hamilton Twp. School

SCIOTA — A $706.50 gift of sound and movie projection equipment has been made to children of the Hamilton Township School by the township Parent-Teachers Association.

At a school board meeting this week, Mrs. Gwen Veety, representing the PTA, presented five pieces of equipment to be used in visual aids instruction for pupils at the school.

Included in the gift are a Victor Sovereign projector with speaker, a 70-inch by 70-inch screen, a standard 500C projector for showing slides, a projection table and a six-by-eight screen.

In making the gift, the PTA asked that children in the school be given the greatest possible benefit from the equipment and that it be used to the fullest extent possible in broadening the curriculum of the school. N. Henry Fennell,

TOMMY MANVILLE'S ninth wife, Anita Roddy-Eden Manville, 51, is shown after she obtained a divorce from the millionaire playboy in the Reno, Nev., District Court on a charge of extreme cruelty. Under a property settlement she will receive $140,000 in cash immediately and $1,000 a month for 10 years. They were married on July 10, 1932, and separated on March 14, 1933.

building principal, assisted in the selection of the equipment, Mrs. Veety said.

Board Accepts Gift

On behalf of the board, and children of the school, Thomas P. Rogers, president, accepted the gift and paid tribute to the generosity of the PTA and the citizens of the township.

Rogers noted that the parents and teachers had sponsored a number of events to raise funds for the equipment. Fred Dent, supervising principal of the school, was appointed to take charge of the equipment.

Dent reported to the board that he had met with a PTA committee and that the group intends to continue the playground equipment project as their work for the year.

John C. Litts, county superintendent, was at the meeting. He discussed means of tackling the overcrowded classroom problem at the school with members of the board. Mrs. Muriel Hildebrandt, Ross Township school board member, also attended the meeting. Ross is now sending all its pupils to either Chestnut Hill or Wind Gap schools.

School directors announced that all interested citizens in the district are urged to attend board meetings on the second Monday of each month.

Emergency Job Office To Be Moved

THE EMERGENCY employment service facilities established in the district office of the Bureau of Employment Security, 22 S. Sixth St., Stroudsburg, will be transferred next Monday to East Stroudsburg.

In announcing this change Dr. Frank P. Maguire, district manager, said the East Stroudsburg Office, 79 S. Courtland St., will again provide employment service to residents of the entire area as in the past.

Emergency quarters were set up in the district office August 19 to assist work applicants and employers in the Stroudsburg area when transportation was impossible or restricted between the two boroughs.

Dr. Maguire reported that 605 volunteer workers were assigned, and 451 paid workers were hired from Aug. 19 to 31 through the local Employment Service offices.

State Sportsmen To Attack Buildup In State Game Fund

Clubs Feel Surplus Is Too Large

HARRISBURG, Sept. 15 (AP)—A continuing buildup of surplus money in the state game fund is due to be criticized this weekend by organized sportsmen of Pennsylvania.

"I feel sure the subject will come up and I think the feeling among our group is that the surplus should not be permitted to grow so large," said Charles H. Nehf, secretary of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs.

The federation, representing over 185,000 members of some 900 clubs throughout the state, opens its two-day annual fall convention tomorrow. Twenty-seven separate proposals dealing with game, fish, conservation, pollution and other outdoor matters will come before delegates of the federation's eight divisions.

Changes Urged

The proposals, urging changes in present state practices, were suggested by local or county clubs and will be considered first by federation directors tomorrow and then by all convention delegates Saturday.

The convention closes Saturday afternoon with the annual election of officers. Raymond H. Armstrong, Guys Mills, Crawford County is eligible for re-election to another one-year term as president.

The latest financial statement of the Game Commission, covering the year ending May 31, shows the commission has close to two million dollars in U. S. Government securities. That is an increase of about $500,000 during the 1954-55 fiscal year.

Royalty Bonanza

Nehf said that some federation officials feel that huge surpluses become a target for lawmakers who consider it a likely source for revenue for other purposes.

Game fund money comes strictly from hunting sources with the greatest part depending on the sale of hunting licenses. However, last year the game fund received half a million dollars from game royalties and rent on game lands.

The commission last year adopted a policy to earmark the royalty receipts for capital investments such as regional headquarters or game lands near the centers of population. That policy became effective June 1, 1955, so is not reflected in last year's financial report.

Passports Show Boom In Travel

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—A chic strawberry blonde is shaking up the passport office to cope with Americans "on a colossal traveling spree."

The quotes belong to Miss Frances G. Knight, who took over May 1 as the State Department's director of passports. She's in the midst of a sweeping reorganization.

Reporting on the foreign travel boom, Miss Knight said the number of U. S. passports issued and renewed has increased from 38,849 to 560,000 this year.

Improved Conditions

She credits improved political and economic conditions for the rise. In her opinion, nothing short of a depression or a war will discourage the travelers.

The big change in passport operations will come Sept. 23. That's when the Passport Division moves—lock, stock and filing cabinet—into new offices.

Passport policy is under review as the physical quarters change. A recent court decision held that Americans have an inherent right to travel abroad and a passport cannot be denied them except for overriding questions of national security. In the past the passport office's right to withhold or grant passports had never been challenged.

Rollin Carpenter Listed As Driver

A STORY in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Record erroneously identified Elizabeth Carpenter of 206 Wallace St., as the operator of a car involved in a two-car collision on Main St. Tuesday. Police explained that while one of the cars involved was owned by the woman, it was being operated by Rollin Carpenter, 43, of the same address.

READY TO ROLL! The first truckload of mowers from Worthington Mower Co. plant was shipped out yesterday, bound for another State. Here, standing outside the rear of the loaded truck, are Harold Swenson, executive secretary of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce; H. G. Sanborn Jr., of Worthington, and Bill Osborn, man in charge of the trucks. Two loads went out from the plant yesterday—the first shipment made since the Aug. 18 flood, which swept through the plant.

Worthington Ships Mowers From Plant

WORTHINGTON Mower Company, one of the hardest hit industries in the area, shipped two truck loads of mowers from here yesterday and H. G. Sanborn Jr., general manager, said by mid-October the plant would be back in full production.

Repairs of building damages created by the pressure of flood waters are being rapidly made. Paul Edinger, Stroudsburg, is the contractor.

Some 75 men at the plant have been getting machine tools and production equipment in shape for resumption of manufacturing processes.

Widow, Child Fight Railroad

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 15 (AP)—A widow and child today battled one of the nation's biggest railroads. They want automatic flasher lights at a New York Central crossing where the girl's father was killed. Railroad witnesses said the lights aren't necessary.

Petite Pamela Sue Huff, 9-year-old Girl Scout, started the case with a letter to President Eisenhower asking greater safety precautions by railroads. The President referred the case to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which sent it to the Ohio Public Utilities Commission.

The one-day hearing was held today before PUCO attorney-examiner Lewis Witherspoon, who said his recommendation would be ready in about six weeks.

Pam Turns Shy
Pamela and her mother, Mrs. Emily Huff, of Belfast, in Highland County, appeared at the hearing without counsel. Attorney Ralph Mahaffey of Columbus represented the commission. Mrs. Huff said she was unaware that she would have to testify or need an attorney.

But testify she did after Pam became shy in the ornate hearing room and cried softly just before the hearing started. Pam did not take the stand. The little pig-tailed girl sat quietly through a long parade of witnesses called by the railroad.

Jointure Steering Committee Drafting Proposed Agreement

MOUNT POCONO — The steering committee working to set up articles for a proposed Pocono Mountain Joint School system met last night at the school here.

Using agreements set up for other jointures as a basis for its findings, the committee has now agreed on all but two provisions which must go into the final proposed agreement. This proposal will be submitted to the group of boards involved.

Districts attending last night's meeting were Tobyhanna, Paradise, Mount Pocono, Coolbaugh and Barrett. Tunkhannock and Jackson were unable to attend. Pocono Township directors were there as guests.

Enrollment Figures
Walter Sebring, assistant county superintendent, reported on figures showing enrollment for the districts during the past 10 years. Discussion of the possible cost of a high school building also took place.

In previous meetings, the committee has agreed that the jointure agreement should be for five years; that if, within six months no site has been chosen for a proposed high school, the county office should be asked to contact the State Department of Public Instruction so that an impartial committee could be appointed to pick a site from among those proposed for the building.

New Search

Dash said that an earlier search had revealed nothing, but he ordered a new search of the premises—after the Schwartzes' arrest Monday night—to satisfy his own curiosity.

Dash said that 19 witnesses had been subpoenaed for Monday's hearing for the Schwartzes, and added that his office is investigating an alleged attempt to "cover up" the abortion death.

to-point tariff," Swenson explained. "This means there will be no additional charge made to the shippers."

ICC Approved

An order approved by the ICC Sept. 12 permits Osborn to engage in trucking between the terminal and to points in Pike County south of Route 6, to all points in New Jersey within 25 miles of Stroudsburg.

Four persons will be employed at the outset, Swenson revealed. But as operations progress, it's expected that the terminal will mean steady work for 12 to 18 people.

Osborn's initial investment involves $18,000 in equipment, and another $15,000 for the building and land.

The terminal itself will be 35 feet wide and 60 feet long with an open platform measuring an additional 35-by-20 feet. Both the floor and platform will be "tailgate high."

The terminal, constructed of sheet metal, will be able to handle a maximum of 19 trucks at one time. Six loading bays will be located on each side, and seven vehicles can be handled from the platform.

Orders Trucks

The operation will involve the purchase of a fork-lift truck, and a "switch-engine" tractor to be used within the terminal. Osborn has also placed an order for three 16-foot aluminum-body trucks to make pick-ups and deliveries.

The terminal idea was first proposed at a Manufacturers Association meeting two years ago. Osborn accepted the challenge and applied for necessary ICC rights with the aid of the Chamber of Commerce.

After numerous filings and postponements, the first formal hearing before the ICC was held in Philadelphia May 26, 1955. At that time, representatives of the Chamber, the Manufacturers Association, local industries and shippers were present on behalf of the applicant.

Objections Withdrawn

Eight attorneys were recorded in opposition at that time, but each one subsequently withdrew his opposition as certain concessions were made in relation to territory and exclusion of such items as explosives.

The second and final hearing was held July 6 in Stroudsburg before Michael B. Driscoll, ICC examiner. On September 12, permission was granted Osborn by Harold D. McCoy, commission secretary.

Challenges Red Hunters

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—A small town librarian was threatened with a contempt of Congress charge today after challenging the right of a Senate subcommittee to question her about Communist activities.

Mrs. Mary Knowles of Plymouth Meeting, Pa., swore she is not a Communist now but refused to say whether she had ever belonged to the party.

In a quiet voice, the slender, dark-haired witness told the Internal Security subcommittee that she had no knowledge of anything concerning national security, subversion, sabotage or espionage communication within the purview of the 1950 Internal Security Act or the subcommittee set up to police its administration.

Consequently, Mrs. Knowles said, and in view of the fact that she is a private citizen employed by a private institution operated under the care of a religious organization, she felt the subcommittee did not have the authority to question her.

For nearly two years Mrs. Knowles has been employed by the William Jeanes Memorial Library in the Quaker community of Plymouth Meeting. The library has refused demands of some of the townspeople that she be discharged. It has held to its position despite being cut off from township and community chest contributions.

One legal point involved was that Mrs. Knowles did not invoke the Delaware Valley Flood Control Measures Rest With Determination Of People Here

How it would be possible to forget a flood disaster of the proportions we had here Aug. 18-19 is almost impossible to conceive, yet Gen. Samuel Sturgis, chief of the U. S. Army's Corps of Engineers told us Wednesday that sharp memory of even worse floods have slipped into the limbo in communities where they struck.

What Gen. Sturgis was pointing up is the danger that people in Monroe County and the Delaware River watershed flood areas, will forget to the point where they fail to support what the Corps of Engineers hopes to do in the way of flood control.

Right now, everybody's deeply concerned, anxious for action. The problems involved in flood control on the Federal level, as Gen. Sturgis pointed out "are many and complex." It might take as long as four years to achieve adequate channel straightening, cleaning, levees and dikes to protect us against "the next time."

Right now the Engineers—who have had flood control plans which included dams and other flood control measures for years—are engaged in reviewing these plans in the light of findings from a study of the effects of Hurricane Diane.

Next comes action in Congress, with that action based on the Engineer's report dealing with the economic stability and engineering feasibility of flood control measures.

There seems to be little doubt right now that Congress will authorize flood control measures on the basis of the Corps of Engineers report. But the matter does not end there.

Many projects are authorized by Congress which never get started for the simple reason money has not been appropriated for the work. Next, then, must come pressure for those necessary appropriations.

All these proceedings may stretch out as long as four years—that's two consecutive sessions of Congress. Intertwined with all this maneuvering are problems and pressures of the local government involved, the county government, the state government and the effect channel changes and improvements will have on communities downstream unaffected by our recent flood.

All of these matters must be solved—an other time factor being involved.

What will be your degree of enthusiasm four years from now regarding the flood control we all know is so badly needed now?

The Corps of Engineers—charged with this type of work—are always ready, always enthusiastic, always recommending solutions. We have nothing to worry about insofar as the Engineers are concerned.

Our problem is one of maintaining our own determination, our own vocal insistence, our complete and unified backing as people of the Delaware River watershed of the Corps of Engineers long-standing urging that adequate flood control installations be created in the Delaware Valley area.

Fear Of Shift In Balance Of Power In U. N. To Block Any Changes In Charter

The Tenth General Assembly of the United Nations will be faced with a decision as to whether a conference is to be called to review the Charter and, if necessary, to amend or revise it. The provision to do that in the Charter itself is a very wise one. After 10 years of experience with the Charter, its members ought to know whether they have a workable document and want to keep it as is.

For one thing, if the United Nations is to be a parliament of man, all nations should belong to it. As it stands, Soviet Russia has three votes in the General Assembly while every other member state, including the United States, has one vote each. This is one of the absurdities discussed at Yalta and settled at San Francisco. The Ukraine and Byelorussia are not independent states.

On the other hand, Ireland, Switzerland, Spain, Portugal, Italy, Albania, Finland, Austria, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria, Jordan, Nepal, Libya, Ceylon, West Germany, and Japan are not members. East Germany, the Mongolian People's Republic, Red China, North Korea, South Korea, North Viet-Nam, South Viet-Nam, Laos and Cambodia, raise issues which, for a time, justify delay and consideration. The question of admission has much to do with the balance of power within the United Nations not only among the various countries but between the Security Council and the General Assembly. It was Stalin's concept of the United Nations that the great nations should manage the world. Are the great powers to be ruled by a majority vote? Unfortunately the Security Council degenerated until of the five great powers, only three continue to be significant. China is represented by Formosa, whose position is contested by Red China, and France has lost status. So, the Security Council has, for several years, been little more than a contesting ground between the United States and Soviet Russia, with Great Britain as a sort of middleman. Occasionally, one of the non-permanent members speaks up but the words are not important.

On the other hand, the General Assembly has become the really important body, particularly for the smaller nations which use this body as a sounding board. Whereas the Security Council is dominated by the veto, which makes it possible for any one of five nations to reject a proposal, the General Assembly is controlled by no such device. Up to now, Stalinist Russia has been opposed to the revision of the Charter which it regards as an American device to get rid of the veto. What the "New Look" regime of Nikita Khrushchev will have to say about revision, we shall know before long. If he continues to pursue a Leninist Foreign Policy, Khrushchev might agree to a conference, for no other reason than that it gives him further opportunity for an international meeting close to the summit.

From a practical standpoint, the United States has more to lose by the abolition of the veto than Soviet Russia. In the trend toward neutralism, a majority of small nations could combine against the United States in the General Assembly and vote in such a manner as to do this country damage or force us to withdraw from the United Nations altogether. It is in connection with this danger that some measure like the Bricker Amendment is essential and undoubtedly will be passed or the Charter will be tightened so as not, under any circumstances, to affect through its provisions the internal laws of any country.

The fear of a shift in the balance of power in the United Nations will probably prevent any drastic changes in the Charter. For instance, it has been suggested that voting be by population, which would give Red China four times the vote of the United States and India about 10 times the vote of Great Britain. This, of course, will not happen because the countries with huge masses of population do not possess the power to enforce their will either by political or military means.

Another question that could arise in a conference for revision is the Secretariat and staff of the United Nations and their relationship to member states. This is becoming an extremely vexed problem, particularly as some countries object to methods of employment. This, of course, applies particularly to Americans who work for the United Nations.

During his untiring efforts to ease the minds of many, he contacted over 80 outside stations as well as sending out over 1,000 messages.

To him and his wife we owe our everlasting "THANKS" for all of their work.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Fred W. Hershey

Dear Mr. Heller:
Cooperation such as yours eased considerably our task of restoring electric service after the flood.

We sincerely appreciate your every effort in keeping the public fully informed of developments, particularly your assurance of the stable condition of the dam at Lake Wallenpaupack, thus helping to quiet unnecessary fears that might have led to panic. Thank you very much.

Our one regret is that, in the hectic days of the emergency, much help was given us by individuals and groups that we cannot identify and, therefore, cannot thank individually. If you know of any such instances, would you pass on to them our heartfelt thanks for their generous assistance during those difficult days.

My America

—by Harry Boyd

Sometimes It's Dangerous To Help People Of Russia

Whatever they may say for public consumption behind the Iron Curtain, the Russian functionaries who came over to this country to see how the American farmer does it learned some things that they felt could be of use to them. That was pretty obvious in the snatches of various bilingual exedroppers picked up from the visitors' conversations among themselves in their own language.

It will be interesting to see how the Soviet regime applies the lessons these touring observers learned.

One of the things about farming in this country that impressed them was the low ratio of manpower to production. They made no secret of their amazement that so much of our farm work is done by so few people—people, of course, whose muscles are heavily heeled up with machinery and mechanical horsepower.

"Where are the workers?" they asked during the first few days as they drove past Iowa's lush cornfields and well-stocked feedlots. In Russia those fields and lots would have been dotted with many hard-working men and women.

It was one of the secrets of our success, the Russians agreed, that our farmers made such effective use of machinery. They intimated that when they got home they would see what could be done about applying that secret to their own collective farming operations.

Compassionate people here jumped to the conclusion that if that lesson alone were applied, the result would be an improvement in the lot of the Russian peasants, for whom nobody here harbors any particular ill will.

But is any such conclusion warranted? Or are we making the mistake of assuming that the minds of the Soviet commissars work in the same general way ours do?

No doubt the Russians, as a result of their investigation of American farming methods, will soon begin to use a great deal more machinery and mechanical power on their collective farms. More tractors will take the places of the many human toilers in their fields. But it doesn't necessarily follow that the human toilers will wind up better off. Maybe what the Russian leaders have learned from us that they don't need those workers—that the machines can do more and better work, and eat less.

So it could be that the workers will be shot down, to save provisions, or perhaps loaded into cattle cars and trundled off to the salt mines of Siberia.

I hope it won't turn out that way but I wouldn't bet any money on it.

This is one of the dangers inherent in impulses to help people of other lands without knowing very clearly what they are up against. It's easy enough to put ourselves in their shoes and figure out what we'd do if we were they. It isn't as easy to figure out what they will do if we put our shoes on them.

In Missouri, they tell about a city fellow who was rash enough to buy a mule, but soon realized he didn't have the faintest notion of how to make it obey his commands. So he hired a professional mule trainer.

That worthy approached the mule with a murderous gleam in his eye and a heavy wooden board in his hand. He took a roundhouse swing and socked the mule's back just as hard as he could. The mule didn't even blink. The trainer whacked him again.

"Gosh a'mighty," protested the owner, "are you fixing to murder my mule?"

"It's easy to see you know nothing about these critters," said the trainer grimly. "First thing you gotta do is win their attention."

Man May Be Approaching Goal To Control Weather

Robert S. Allen is on vacation. In his absence, his column today is by the director of a little-known but vitally important weather agency that is preparing to conduct a series of momentous tests, which were ordered by a special law enacted for that purpose by Congress. These tests may be of great help in achieving man's age-old goal of controlling the climate. Author of this absorbing column is Howard T. Orville, Chairman, Advisory Committee on Weather Control, and a leading authority in that field.

By Howard T. Orville, Chairman, Advisory Committee on Weather Control

Washington, September 15.—From time immemorial man has dreamed of controlling the weather. That we may be approaching this goal is predicted by recent public announcements from two prominent scientists who played an important role in the development of atomic weapons.

Dr. John von Neumann, member of the Atomic Energy Commission, says, "Probably intervention in atmospheric and climatic matters will come in a few decades and will unfold on a scale difficult to imagine at present." And Dr. Edward Teller, leading hydrogen bomb developer, voiced confidence that important steps in the direction of weather control would be made in the next decade.

Just what progress we are making toward that epic goal is now under study by President Eisenhower's Advisory Committee on Weather Control.

Public Law 256, which established the Committee, states: "The Committee shall make a complete study and evaluation of public and private experiments in weather control for the purpose of determining the extent to which the United States should experiment with, engage in, or regulate activities designed to control weather conditions."

Although precipitation-increasing is only a tiny step toward the ultimate goal of weather or climate control, it is nevertheless a step in that direction. This eleven-member Committee has been working particularly on an evaluation program to test the effectiveness of various cloud seeding methods.

At a cost of around $3,000,000, more than 200,000,000 acres are seeded annually to increase precipitation. Other cloud seeding projects are designed to inhibit damaging hail or prevent lightning strikes, a prevalent cause of forest fires in the Western states. All of these experiments are under review by the Committee.

The Committee's study is proceeding along two principal fronts: (1) A statistical evaluation program; and (2) a physical evaluation program to check the validity of the field operations. The statistical evaluation is carried out to determine whether cloud seeding increases precipitation over that which would occur naturally if no seeding had taken place. In order that the evaluation may be entirely impartial, the Committee's staff has developed new methods of evaluation, using well-known and accepted statistical techniques.

One method of predicting "normal rainfall" in a given situation gives great promise of increasing the precision of evaluation. A new statistical "model" has been developed, into which various hypothetical increases can be fed to establish positively the sensitivity of the tests. The statistical evaluation offers the possibility for evaluating a large number of commercial cloud seeding experiments and for determining the effectiveness of their cloud seeding methods. It provides a method for possibly detecting the conditions under which cloud seeding works and those under which it may not be effective.

Early in its study the Committee found it necessary to develop a physical evaluation program which has to do with determining whether the various types of silver iodide ground generators are actually producing the silver iodide particles which serve as freezing nuclei upon reaching a cloud.

Commercial cloud seeding companies have used these generators on the assumption that the well-known effects produced by the silver iodide smoke in the laboratory will act in exactly the same manner in the free atmosphere. However, one of the most controversial of all problems pertaining to cloud modification and rain increasing is the effectiveness of the silver iodide which is dispensed by the ground generators.

By this time it has been definitely established that generators of conventional design are capable of producing 1014 to 1015 nuclei per second. Substantially it has been proved that all of these nuclei will produce ice crystals in supercooled clouds in temperatures from -5°C. to -15°C. under well controlled laboratory conditions, and that those nuclei will create ice crystals if they are injected into supercooled clouds in the atmosphere under the same temperature conditions. However, in most commercial cloud seeding operations the nuclei emitted by the generators must travel a number of miles, anywhere from 10 to 100 miles, in clear air before entering the target cloud.

This introduces doubt in the minds of many as to the effectiveness of the nuclei, since research has shown that silver iodide are greatly influenced by exposure to sunlight and ambient temperatures. In bright sunlight and very high temperatures they may become inactive in a very few minutes.

The results are quite well established that the sensitivity of the nuclei to sunlight and temperature depends upon the methods of generation. Recent Australian tests seem to indicate that the effective life of silver iodide nuclei is dependent to a large degree upon temperature and pressure and that wintertime mountain weather conditions are especially favorable for producing nuclei with only a slight decay rate.

Grouse Prospect This Fall

—by H. G. Heller

GROUSE prospects for this fall have been the subject of much speculation by Pennsylvania bird hunters. In the August issue of The American Field, under the title "Fan Tales," Marc DeBerti, Brookville, Pa., gives his views on the subject as of mid-summer 1953.

An employee of the U. S. Forest Service, DeBerti works on the control of forest tree diseases. In his official duties he systematically covers, on foot, much Allegheny National Forest land, State Game Lands in the north-central part of the state. The region described is called by DeBerti "The heart of what is known as the best grouse hunting territory in the East." The man is a field trial naturalist and a qualified observer, who has watched grouse population trends for years. His views do not necessarily reflect grouse conditions state-wide.

Keep Accurate Count!

In his article DeBerti says: "In the course of our official duties it is a simple matter to record the number of grouse nests found, number of eggs in each nest, the number that hatch and the number that are destroyed by predators. As the summer goes on . . . we keep count of the number of birds reaching maturity. We determine averages for eggs in nests, number of birds hatching, nests destroyed, and the number of chicks in each brood seen. Finally, averages for half-grown broods, three-quarter grown broods, and eventually averages in late September before the 'crazy flight' season of mature birds. We take all of these figures and try to arrive at some sort of workable plan or idea as to whether there are going to be more or less grouse for the coming shooting season and the field trials on the Allegheny National Forest."

"At this writing the birds are three-fourths grown. Naturally our findings and calculations are not complete, but we do have a definite trend that may be some indication of what grouse hunters will find this coming November. With the same number of men working in the same manner we did not find as many nests this May as we did last year. We did notice a definite increase in the number of eggs per nest. Last year our average was a little less than nine eggs per nest. This spring our average for a total of 22 nests located was ten plus eggs per nest."

Crazed Killer Captured For Shooting Boss

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (AP)—A crazed killer-rapist, loaded gun in hand, lost his nerve and ran after squaring off with an armed policeman today. He was captured uninjured after a short chase and burst of gunfire.

Police said Michael Morabito, 30, related he shot to death his former boss in the Chicago Daily News plant and raped a terrified young radio station receptionist a few hours later while a city-wide manhunt was being pressed for him.

His capture, on a West Side street, came less than 24 hours after he pumped four .38 caliber pistol slugs into Henry George, 47, a mailing room foreman, after going berserk in the newspaper's crowded, busy pressroom.

Spotted By Neighbor

Morabito was spotted near a filling station in his home neighborhood by policeman Peter Rendek, a neighbor who knew him. Rendek and his partner, Howard Pierson, joined the hunt on their own time after working their regular overnight shift on the homicide detail.

Rendek eased out from behind the wheel of the squad car and drew his gun. Morabito, walking across the street, recognized him and jerked his pistol from his belt.

For several tense, silent seconds they faced each other, neither raising his weapon.

Then Rendek fired a shot into the air "to show I meant business."

"Listen, Pete," Morabito begged and started backing away.

Jumped Up, Ran

The fugitive dropped to the sidewalk, still clutching his pistol, but he jumped up and ran when the officer came up.

Rendek fired three more shots over Morabito's head as he ran toward the intersection of Harding Rendek had called to the filling station attendant to notify police headquarters and 29 squads converged on the scene.

Morabito, a former mailing room employee of the Daily News, told

Chief of Detectives John T. O'Malley he shot George because it was "one of them things."

O'Malley said Morabito also related that he raped the receptionist after forcing her to accompany him to a deserted lake front beach, but that he refused to sign a statement.

Grunewald Arrested On Tax Charge

BAITMORE, Sept. 15 (AP)—Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, ex-Washington influence king convicted of helping others evade their taxes, was arrested today on a charge of cheating to the tune of $96,000 on his own, and was released on bail.

The mystery man of the nation's capital was arrested at 1 a.m. today in a Washington parking lot.

He was held until about 10 a.m. for a hearing before U.S. Commissioner Ernest Volkart in Baltimore.

Bail, originally set at $12,000, was reduced to $10,000 after two of Grunewald's lawyers conferred with U.S. Atty. George Cochran Doub.

Previously Sentenced

The balding 62-year-old was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 last April in a tax-fixing case by Federal Judge Archie O. Dawson in New York who denounced the defendant as a "termite in the nation's vitals."

Grunewald was accused of conspiring with others to arrange it so that Pattullo Modes, a dress concern, and the Gotham Beef Co., have to face prosecution in tax cases.

He was accused of accepting $160,000 as a fee. A prosecutor in the case claimed Grunewald had set up a "hidden government" in our own nation's capital.

An indictment on the tax evasion charges against Grunewald was returned Tuesday but was kept secret by Doub until after the arrest.

The indictment charges that

29 Days After "Diane"!

The Lackawanna Railroad is stronger than ever!

With heartfelt thanks for one of the fastest rebuilding jobs in the history of railroading, we proudly announce the restoration of Lackawanna service.

Through freight as well as passenger train movements over our own tracks through the Poconos between the Delaware Water Gap and Scranton, will be back on schedule September 16 and 18 respectively (with the exception of Trains #26 and #11 between Scranton and Hoboken).

As a tribute to the devoted and inspired work of our own people and of private contracting groups working for us, we would like to recount the magnitude of their magnificent achievement.

When Hurricane Diane struck on the evening of Thursday, August 18, torrential and unprecedented rains raised streams above flood stage in a matter of minutes. Nothing could withstand the fury of the rushing flood...bridges, culverts, highway and railroad fill, communications and utilities...were swept away or put out of commission.

The Lackawanna suffered washouts, slides and bridge damage at 105 major locations. More than sixty miles of track were washed out; two passenger trains, four freight trains and seventeen diesel locomotive units were stranded in the mountain territory.

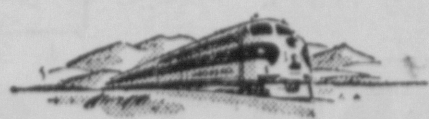

Relief and reconstruction activity began even before the flood peak passed! The Army, with helicopters and emergency bridge equipment to permit the use of buses, helped bring out passengers and train crews. Via emergency detour routes and temporary new roadways, our own crews and equipment and specially hired task forces rushed into the disaster area and reconstruction went on a twenty-four hour basis.

The Lackawanna resumes operations stronger than ever before. The restoration of double tracks with full signal facilities in so short a time is almost incredible. And that isn't the whole story! By utilizing the most advanced engineering techniques including Centralized Traffic Control Systems, by track rearrangement, by widening stream channels, more efficient service and greater protection is provided for the future.

It now appears that "Diane" will cost us almost seven million dollars. Our bills will be paid with no request for, nor anticipation of government help. Our confidence in the future is such that we will go forward with our expansion program for 1956 which calls for the purchase of diesel tugs, box cars, covered hoppers and Piggy Back trailers.

To Lackawanna passengers and shippers who have been inconvenienced during the past 29 days—our sincere appreciation for your forbearance. Now that we're almost back to normal, on our own tracks, we earnestly solicit your continued patronage.

Average Member Contributes 35 Cents Weekly To Church

By George W. Cornell

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—If a man of the West belongs to a church, he's more likely to be in his pew Sunday morning than the Easterner.

But Westerners are harder to get to join the church than are Eastern Americans.

This is one of many sidelights on religion in the United States as brought out in a national study made by the Twentieth Century Fund Foundation.

Regularity Noted

The study shows that women go to church more regularly than men, older people more regularly than young people, Roman Catholics more regularly than Protestants.

The analysis of the present status of religion in the country, part of a broad study of "America's Needs and Resources," was compiled by Dr. Benson Y. Landis, a New York church research specialist.

It gives these other statistics of current religious activity:

1. The average church member contributes 35 cents a week to his church. Fifteen years ago, it was 20 cents.

Large Denominations

2. Almost 90 per cent of the country's 97 million church members belong to 19 larger denominations. About 200 other denominations have only 2 per cent of the total.

HARROGATE, England, Sept. 15 (AP)—"Freedom of epitaphy" is the slogan of Britain's Master Monumental Masons. Rosh Hashanah Observance Tonight Begins New Year For People Of Jewish Faith

TONIGHT at sundown a new year begins for Jews with the observance of Rosh Hashanah.

It will be the first day of the Hebrew month, Tishri. In ancient times, this was the beginning of the economic year and was, therefore, considered an appropriate time for the New Year holiday.

Rosh Hashanah is universally observed by all Jews. Together with Yom Kippur, these two holidays constitute the two holiest times in the Jewish calendar.

The sanctity of the day is felt most at the morning service at the synagogue, according to Rabbi Ernest Mayerfeld of Temple Israel. The ritual, included in the special prayerbook or Mahzor, describes the significance of the day in inspiring, poetic terms.

The most important selections are those describing God as judge, king and lawgiver. This is followed by the reading from the Torah with the melodies chanted by the cantor lending an added beauty and meaning to the service.

The Four Meanings

Rosh Hashanah has a four-fold meaning. It is the New Year, the day of remembrance, the day of judgment, and the day upon which the Shofar is blown.

When Rosh Hashanah comes, the Jew examines his past deeds and thoughts and prays that God will remember him kindly. For this day is believed to be a day of judging, during which each man passes before his creator and his actions and conduct are evaluated.

The Shofar—a traditional, symbolic ram's horn—is blown as the symbol of Jewish history and legend. It is the signal for prayer that Israel will find contentment in the world and that peace and goodness may come to all men.

Day Of Days

Yom Kippur is the final day of the solemn season beginning with Rosh Hashanah. It is considered the most sacred by world Jewry—the "sabbath of sabbaths."

Long before sunset on Sunday, Sept. 25, members of the temple will be at home making preparation for the fast meal and for the Kol Nidrei service.

In the temple, the atmosphere is reverent and sacred. Kol Nidrei night is holy night. The torah scrolls are taken out and Kol Nidrei prayer is chanted. Later the Al Het—confession—is recited and forgiveness of God is asked by Jews.

Services on the following day continue the pleas for forgiveness and the theme of repentance. The liturgy includes a memorial service for dead relatives, readings from the Torah and the Neilah or closing service during the late afternoon.

As the last one long, hopeful note is sounded from the Shofar, echoing the struggles and achievements of the past and a plea for promised happiness in the future.

Services At Temple

The following schedule of services at Temple Israel has been announced by Rabbi Mayerfeld.

Rosh Hashanah—tonight at 6:30; Saturday at 8:30 a. m.; Second day—Saturday at 7:30 p. m. and Sunday at 8:30 a. m.

Yom Kippur—Sunday, Sept. 25 at 6:30 p. m.; Monday, Sept. 26 at 8:30 a. m. and the Yizkor service at 11:30 a. m.

Succoth—Friday, Sept. 30 at 7:30 p. m. followed by Kiddush in the Succah; Saturday, Oct. 1 at 7:30 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m.; Sunday, Oct. 2 at 9 a. m. followed by a children's party in Succah; Friday, Oct. 7 at 7:30 p. m. and Saturday, Oct. 8 at 7:30 a. m.

Simchas Torah—Saturday, Oct. 8 at 7:30 p. m. followed by a children's celebration and Sunday, Oct. 9 at 9 a. m. All services in the Temple.

Farm experts estimate that improved pasture can produce about 100 pounds of stock feed at a cost of about 60 cents.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

"Getting back to normal" sounds like a sensible thing at the moment, but doing it is something else again. Housewives, used to having a whole week in which to do their work, are feeling pushed with three mornings a week given over to volunteer service.

Besides it's just recently that it's been three mornings a week. Earlier it was more of a seven-day a week proposition, and it's amazing the amount of housework that can pile up with nobody home. So until they've caught up with that, and with their sleep and eased their tired feet, it's going to be pretty hard to get women to do anything for purely social reasons.

But the DAR is going to try, anyway. Not only because they want to honor the Constitution, but also because they think it would do the women good to put on their hat and gloves and shoes without sensible heels and get away for an afternoon. Get sort of a prospective on it maybe.

Besides, club work piles up as well as housework, and a lot of it has community angles that have to be considered. And this volunteer service is going to continue for some weeks yet, so just postponing a meeting won't work either.

I don't envy the club officers these days. They've got their work cut out for them in more ways than one. However, "normal" is a comparative term so, maybe this is as normal as we're going to be for a while.

Beat an egg, a cup of milk and a couple of tablespoons of molasses together; serve to small fry for a mid-morning or mid-afternoon snack.

Fifth St. Mission Leaders Plan Activities

The teachers and officers of the Fifth Street Presbyterian Mission held their first business meeting of the fall season at the mission on Monday night, September 12. The superintendent, John Neipert, gave the opening prayer. Mrs. Nora Bradshaw was called on, as secretary to give her report but was unable to do so as her home at Camp Wyomissing had been hit by the flood and her secretarial records could not be located. Mrs. Lois Barry then read the treasurer's report for the months of July and August.

A discussion followed relative chiefly to the changes in plans brought about by the flood. The Mission's annual corn roast had been planned for August 18 and was automatically cancelled when the rains came. The group decided to hold a substitute for this "much looked forward to" gathering and decided it should be in the form of an inside hamburger and doggie roast. The date has been set as September 26, and will be held at the mission with an informal program following.

The superintendent called attention to the fact that the Pilgrim Holiness group was using the mission for services since their own building suffered extensive damages during the flood. All class teachers were then called on to give reports and state their complaints or approval of the lesson material with which they have been working. Several changes in courses were decided upon; however, the overall comment was that progress had been noted in the new children's classes.

Rally Day was the final topic under discussion and October 9 was the date selected. Tentative plans for a program were made with final announcement to come later. The meeting was then adjourned. Those in attendance were: Mr. and Mrs. John Neipert and children, Dorothy and Susan; Pierre Lake and daughter, Joan; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pooley, Mrs. Nora Bradshaw, Mrs. Gladys Marsh, Mrs. Lois Barry, Mrs. Mildred Kintner, Miss Eunice Reaser, Miss Barbara Garis, Miss Mary Ann Jennings, Miss Sandra Mader, Abbie Jane Frisbie and James Bradshaw.

mer Christine, and Mrs. Marjory Vogler were welcomed at the meeting.

Plans were made for a family pot-luck supper to be held September 27 at 6:30 p.m. The guest speaker will be Carroll Wright who will show colored slides on his trip to the Holy Lands.

Hostesses at Tuesday's meeting were Mrs. Leila Shafer, Mrs. Nathan Kishpaugh, Miss Mary Kishpaugh and Mrs. George Merring.

Ward Keeps Rolling In Amateur Golf

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 15 (P)—Bob Ward, Jr., survived a harrowing plague of upsets and shot into the semi-finals of the National Amateur golf tournament today with a cold-headed collegian from Memphis and two business men from the East.

He was joined in the round of four by Hillman Robbins, 23, Memphis State College senior; William Hyndman III, 39, Philadelphia insurance executive; and Bob Boe of Bridgeport, Conn., a fabric buyer who used to specialize in place-kicking for Yale during the two-platoon football era.

Now the prime championship favorite in one of the rockiest of national tournaments, Ward, a Tarboro, N.C., native now selling automobiles in San Francisco, will oppose the surprising Mr. Boe in tomorrow's 36-hole match. Hyndman and Robbins clash in the first encounter.

Victories

Ward knocked out Bob McCall of Youngstown, Ohio, 3 and 2, and then finished off Jim McCoy, 19, college boy from West Palm Beach Fla., 6 and 4.

The other matches carried to the 18th green of the broad, rolling James River course of the Country Club of Virginia.

Boe won over Charles Kunkle, towering Johnstown, Pa., water works man, 1 up, in a bizarre finish when Kunkle, conqueror of British Amateur champion Joe Conrad in the morning round, missed a two-foot putt to take a double bogey six.

The bespectacled ex-Yale grinner won with a bogey five after approaching short and using two putts. He rallied in the match after being three-down through the first five holes.

Outdoor Living Is Fun Electrically

All across America more and more new home plans are including patios and terraces as an integral part of the overall home design. Outdoor living with its increased interest in the casual and recreational, has taken America by storm.

The movement of millions of Americans into casual suburban living in the past decade has been nothing short of phenomenal. Year by year there has been an ever-increasing demand for outdoor furnishings, garden tools and electrical equipment of many kinds for the fuller enjoyment of outdoor living.

GROWING IN POPULARITY

The entire movement into the outdoors has become so popular that a large portion of the population has become increasingly reluctant to come indoors even after dark. The trend is towards nighttime dining and entertainment outdoors, and generally towards the creating of an outdoor "living room."

Perhaps it's the remnants of our hardy American pioneer spirit, this trend to outdoor living. But, it's all made easier these days by the comfort and convenience which only electricity can provide.

OUTDOOR LIVING APPLIANCES

For outdoor living need be no less civilized than modern electric living is indoors. Many portable electric cooking devices are available to meet the needs of outdoor living America. There are electric grills, table grills, waffle irons, fry pans, broiler-rotisseries, drink blenders and coffee makers that just plug in for easy cooking. All that is needed is a table set up in your favorite outdoor spot, weatherproof convenience outlets and electricity makes the outdoor meal a simple and pleasant task — and Dad becomes a better outdoor chef than ever before.

Outdoor living isn't the only thing possible through electrical outlets placed outdoors. Dad's electric hedge clippers and electric power mower can make his outdoor work easier, too.

LIGHTING IMPORTANT

Lighting helps make much of the after-dark activity in the great outdoors possible. Weatherproof convenience outlets will make an outdoor living room as modern wiring-wise as the interior of the home. And, for flexibility, allowing refreshing changes in lighting garden or patio, rubber cord sets are available for moving portable garden lights from place to place. Shields for outdoor lighting are available in a variety of shapes and colors to blend with garden foliage for pleasing nighttime lighting effects. Illuminated lily pads for the garden pool are also new wrinkles in outdoor nighttime lighting.

When planning outdoor lighting remember that the viewer should be aware of the lighting, not the lights themselves. Be selective and accent only areas of interest. Keep lights out of sight and out of the viewer's eyes.

Lights accent a home's beauty, too, by strategic placing of spot and flood lamps, and light helps welcome friends, makes paths and steps safer, and keeps intruders away.

When building or buying a new home it is well to plan outdoor living facilities in conjunction with the home itself. For much of home entertainment, pleasure, work and relaxation formerly considered as indoors activities have now come outdoors to share through the versatile helping hand of electricity.

Briggs Fails In Bid To Buy Control Of Detroit Holdings

DETROIT, Sept. 15 (P)—Walter O. (Spike) Briggs' bid to buy control of the Detroit Tigers failed today, casting considerable doubt over his future as president of the baseball team.

Representing a five-man syndicate, Briggs made a 2½-million dollar offer to his four sisters to buy both the franchise and Briggs Stadium. He was turned down.

Briggs said his sisters' decision "may have been influenced by the low price and the future value of the club which may develop when some of our kids start coming up from the minor leagues."

Report

Briggs reportedly represented 44 per cent of the syndicate offer. He said he was in no position to up his share and if the syndicate wanted to increase its offer, he would have to drop out.

"This boy has gone for all he can—and then some," Briggs told a news conference, a taut smile on his face. He obviously was shaken by his sisters' decision.

At present, Briggs and his four sisters own the Tigers. They all are members of the Briggs Commercial and Development Co. This is a holding company and is being dissolved.

The final dissolution is set for Oct. 27, with the Briggs' holdings—which include valuable real estate—going into trust funds for the five heirs and their children. This was set up under the will of Walter O. Briggs Sr., president of the Tigers, who died in 1932.

There are even a trio of South eastern Conference games. Kentucky, one of the title darlings, shows its new lineup at Louisiana State Saturday night, the same evening that Georgia and Mississippi, last year's Sugar Bowl victim, are playing on a neutral field at Atlanta. Saturday afternoon Mississippi State is at Florida.

Conference

Not to be outdone, the Pacific Coast circuit also offers a pair of conference clashes with Washington State booked at Southern California and Idaho coming over the mountains to visit Washington.

California, with a line that is giving Lynn O. (Pappy) Waldorf some concern, travels to Pittsburgh to start Johnny Michelson's career as Panther coach. That is the only major game in the East.

Come next December football followers may discover that the champion of the entire South was crowned in the Miami-Georgia Tech game, which is this week's NCAA TV morsel.

Tech goes into the fray with the same backfield that scampers so brilliantly for the Engineers at the close of last season.

Taunton Drops Sox

TAUNTON, Mass., Sept. 15 (P)—Taunton has given back its adopted sports team—the Boston Red Sox. Several weeks ago, when the Red Sox were nudging within a few games of the American League leadership, the Taunton Daily Gazette joined local sportsmen in their rabid support of the team and listed it daily in the standings as the "Taunton Red Sox."

Old Name

Now seven games off the top, the Boston Red Sox again became that by name in the Gazette sports pages today.

Said the editor: "The Sox have become unraveled." over Washington State, Utah over Oregon, Denver over Iowa State, Oregon State over Brigham Young, Arizona over Colorado A&M.

Marciano Batters Two Spar Mates

GROSSINGER, N. Y., Sept. 15 (P)—Rocky Marciano declared he was in the greatest shape of his career today and then proceeded to give two sparring partners a severe body pounding in a four-round drill.

In sharp contrast to Archie Moore's leisurely paced sparring sessions, the heavyweight champion exchanged punches with his two spar-mates in a typical "war." That's the way the champion won his title and it's the only way he knows how to fight. It can't be too bad.

Body Attack

The undefeated, 31-year-old champ whacked away at the body in a two-round session with Sgt. J. B. Reed and in the final two with pudgy Kenne Simmons.

Reed emulated the style Moore is expected to use against Rocky in their title fight at Yankee Stadium Sept. 20. The rangy Air Force non-com jabbed as he moved back from the incoming Marciano.

Athletic Recruiting Problems Hit Southwestern Conference

DALLAS, Sept. 15 (P)—Athletic recruiting problems bobbed up again in the Southwest Conference today and a special meeting of the conference faculty committee has been called to cope with them. A year ago the conference held a session to discuss recruiting troubles, followed by probationary action last May against Texas A&M.

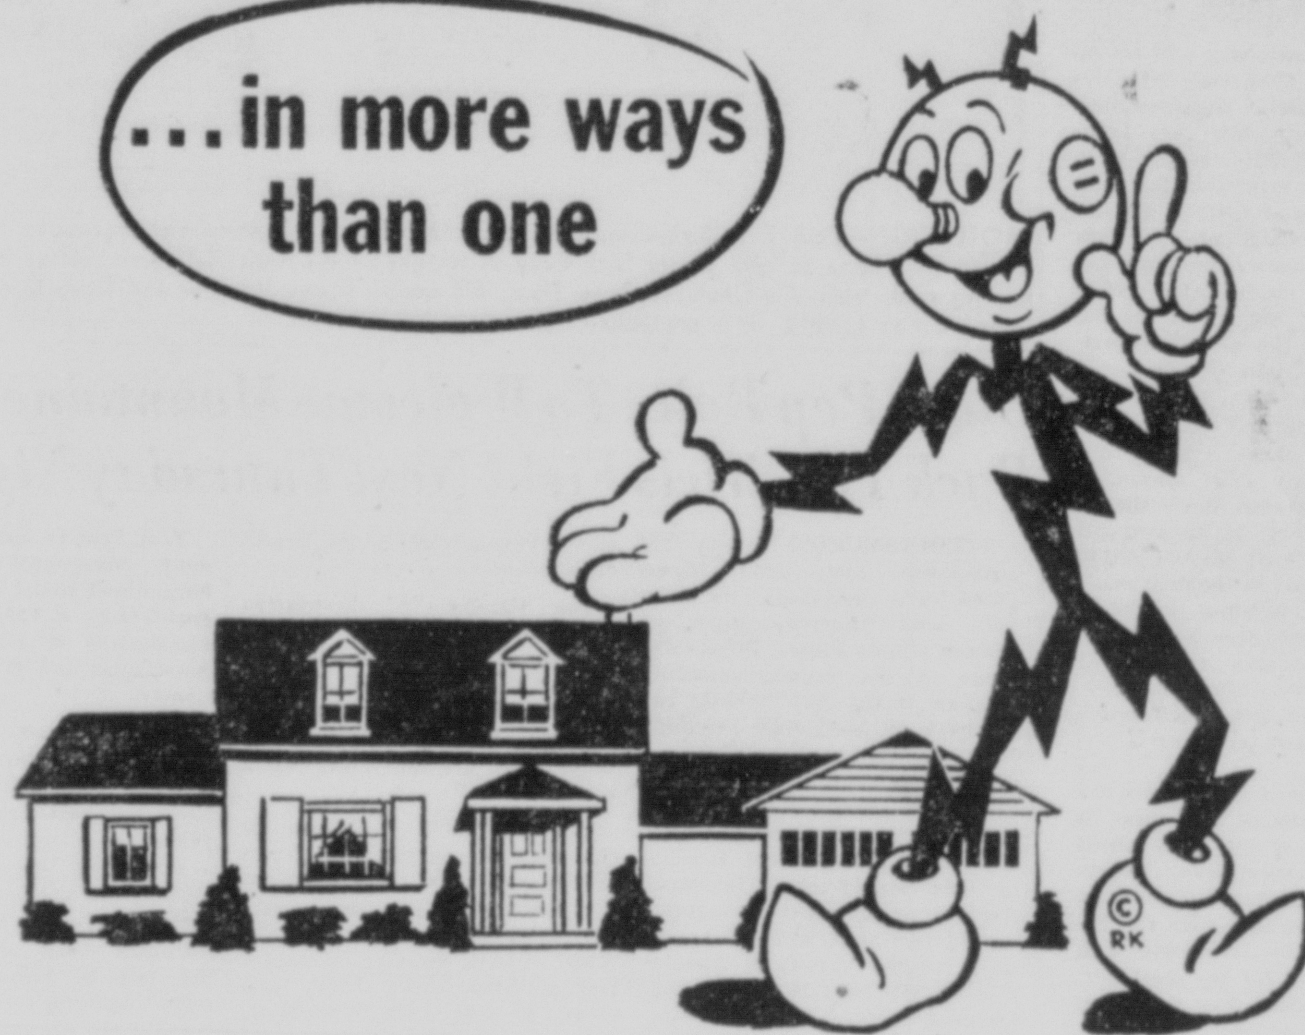

Meeting

The committee will meet again in Dallas Sept. 25 to "discuss recruiting practices in general and to review reports of inquiries by conference coaches and friends and alumni of conference schools." It was announced today. A&M alumni, who reportedly employed a private eye to dig up evidence on other members of the league, are said to have a voluminous report ready. Texas A & M was deprived of some outstanding basketball material when convicted of improper recruiting practices last spring.

Electricity in new homes is the difference between day and night

...in more ways than one

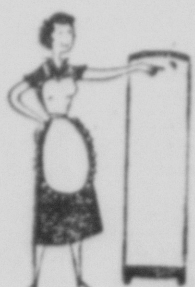

Electricity doesn't just brighten your new home at night...it brightens your whole outlook on life 24 hours a day...if your planning puts it to work properly. And proper planning starts with adequate wiring. Wiring to carry sufficient power to do many or all the jobs that have to be done in every home. It will make the difference between a new home loaded down with old-fashioned work and a new home built around the new concept of freedom from home-making drudgery, electrically!

It's the same story with just about every homemaking chore, from cooking to freezing, from cooling the air to cleaning the floors...the BIG difference in new homes is Reddy Kilowatt and the jobs you plan for him. He'll make the difference between day and night in your new home, in scores of different ways!

HERE ARE JUST SOME OF THE DIFFERENCES ELECTRICITY CAN MAKE IN YOUR NEW HOME!

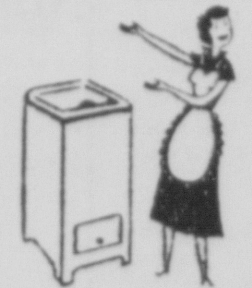

Instead of inconvenient, old-fashioned methods of heating water—Heat it automatically, electrically.

Instead of back-breaking labor in drying family clothes—Dry them automatically, electrically.

Instead of wasted hours washing tons of dishes—Wash and dry them automatically, electrically.

Instead of trash and garbage disposal problems—Get rid of everything burnable, automatically, electrically.

RILEY

Sports Editor

ALTHOUGH the calendar won't bear out this contention, it is a nationally accepted belief that Autumn has officially arrived when the crunch of leather and the cheers of thousands of spectators welcome in King Football. The gridiron royalty will be welcomed into Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg today, when the local high schools open their respective campaigns on opposite fronts, but with the same purpose in mind.

East Stroudsburg will set up shop at Memorial Stadium against a highly regarded Slatington club, while the Mountaineers of Stroudsburg High journey to Lehighton for their initial taste of football activity in 1955. Each of the four clubs will enter tonight's action with clean slates and a "get away" victory in the lifeline of the utmost importance to all four squads.

Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg squads have worked under great difficulty this season, the Mountaineers even more than the Cavaliers. Lack of its own practice field, loss of players, injuries and a late start in the drill sessions have worked against Stroudsburg ever since the now historic flood washed over this region. East Stroudsburg was also hampered by the flood and lost much practice time.

But, none of the coaches are offering excuses and there is very little if any talk about missed practice time. Every one connected with the two teams is working with the belief that the two-day drill routine used for the most part by both clubs has made up for much of the lost time. Although each team is hampered by slight injuries, they are virtually at full strength for the opening contest.

This is the portion of the season at which the lesson has either been learned—or it hasn't. Members of both clubs have worked hard for the past three weeks, and are doggedly determined to open with favorable decisions. Both of our scholastic contingents have whipped themselves into shape despite adversities that would have set most grid machines to far back that they would never recover. Spirit was slow in coming this year due to the almost unbelievable tragedy surrounding the kids. But, it arrived in both camps last week and it has been so abundant that this reporter is picking both the Cavaliers and Mountaineers to launch their respective football seasons with victories tonight.

Slatington will come to town minus Maurice Schleicher and Jack Folweiler, its two big guns of recent years. For this very reason, Slatington may present a stiffer hurdle than it has in the past two campaigns when the Cavaliers rolled to victory. East Stroudsburg has been able to defeat Slatington in the past by stopping both Schleicher and Folweiler. Slatington will feature an experienced line and a smooth working quarterback and probably more team work than ever before.

The Slaters will also come to town under the guidance of a new head coach. They are reportedly well balanced and capable of scoring from any spot on the field. This could very easily be the stiffest opening night test in the history of football at East Stroudsburg and should certainly bring a large crowd into Memorial Stadium, where the Cavaliers will play five of their nine games this year.

Lehighton is reportedly improved over last season and will have plenty of size on its side. Stroudsburg won't be able to let the Indians get the same quick jump they got at Gordon Giffels Field last year. Stroudsburg will have to play heads-up football from start to finish if it wants to open the present campaign in the same winning fashion it did last season.

While East Stroudsburg is battling Slatington and Stroudsburg is going against Lehighton, Bangor High will be playing host to Palmerton at Memorial Park. The Slaters are the pick here, and from this corner it appears as if they will have very little trouble in upending the Blue Bombers from the Lehigh Valley League. Bangor will play both Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg at later dates and its football activity will be watched with interest right up to the time it opposes one or both of the local clubs. At 8 p.m. today the 1955 football season will have officially arrived in Monroe County.

Cavaliers Play Host To Slatington

EAST STROUDSBURG High's purple and white clad grid machine displays its ability for the first time this season today when the Cavaliers take on a highly regarded Slatington crew at Memorial Stadium. The kickoff is slated to get under way at 8 p. m.

The Cavaliers, searching for their third straight win over the Slaters, will open with practically a senior lineup.

Coach Jack Kist last night revealed that the starting offensive team will feature Bill Strunk at center; John Shaffer, right guard;

Dick Gray will call the signals and throw passes from the quarterback slot, while Bill Loder opens at left half and Co-Captain Gene Plaza at right half. Doug Dailey is the number one fullback on the squad.

Ed Yakencheck, a junior, will see plenty of action at tackle and Elwood Mosteller will be on duty at an end post from time to time. Jim Brimer is the number one guard replacement.

Harry Miller, transfer from Stroudsburg High, will back up the line on defense and also see action as an offensive fullback. Ralph Carter will be on duty at both halfback posts and Frank Lupin will be a starting defensive back.

Lupin would ordinarily be in the starting offensive backfield, but is currently hampered by a damaged knee. Denny Wagner, also on the injured list, may see limited service tonight.

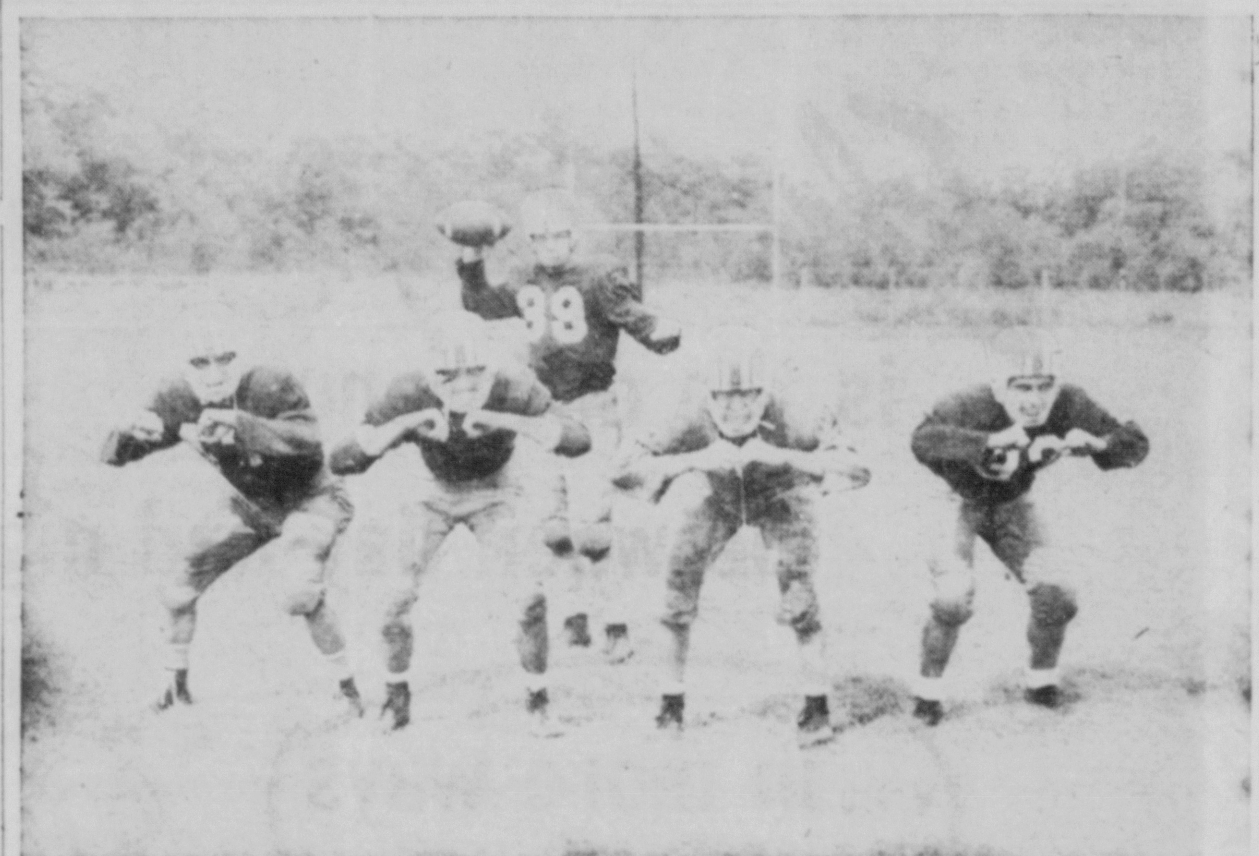

Both clubs will operate out of the "T" formation.

Slatington will again feature the quarterbacking and passing of Dan Babayak, a strong line and a highly regarded backfield. The Slaters are reportedly very scrappy.

"I hope our club makes up for lack of experience through a lot of scrap and a will to win," Kist remarked last night when pressed for a comment.

East Stroudsburg High will hold a pep rally this morning and the school's band will march at the game.

The Varsity "E" Club will operate the public address system and scoreboard as in past years.

STROUDSBURG'S Varsity "S" Association last night began plans for a giant pep rally to be held next Thursday night at Gordon Giffels Field. Plans were made at the regular monthly meeting of the club held at the Stroudsburg Municipal Building.

The association sprang into action the moment it was learned that Stroudsburg would play host to Emmaus at Gordon Giffels Field next Friday night and not at East Stroudsburg's Memorial Stadium as previously announced.

"We feel that with the assistance of the Varsity S Association we will have our field ready for next Friday," it was announced last night by Alfred W. Munson, principal at Stroudsburg High. Munson also stated that the W. Main St. field has been completely cleared by the health department.

The Varsity "S" Association will work on the field on Sunday, at which time the remainder of the fence will be torn down and piled for a bonfire at the pep rally next Thursday.

Work will get underway at 9 a. m. Sunday.

Elwood "Pickles" Hintze is chairman of the pep rally committee and outlined a program that features all parents of players in attendance. T. Manning "Cap" Curtis, director of athletics at Stroudsburg High, will speak, as will John Whitehead, head football coach.

In case of rain the program will be held in the school's auditorium.

Tom Somers, association president, announced that Stroudsburg Flood Relief Fund has been enriched by $5,428.08 through the cooperation of the Varsity "S" Association and West End Youth Center.

It was announced during the meeting that plans to erect an electric scoreboard at Giffels Field has been tabled until next year.

A general discussion on the present Stroudsburg High football squad was held and club members were urged to make the trip to Lehighton for tonight's opening games.

Plans for the current grid campaign were also aired at the gathering which was attended by 25 members.

Williams To Play Again Next Season

BOSTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—General Manager Joe Cronin said today Ted Williams will be back with the Boston Red Sox next season and the club hopes the 37-year-old slugger will play "for several years."

Cronin made the statement to newsmen after Williams was quoted as saying "it depends on the front office" whether he will play in 1956.

Hopeful

"As far as we're concerned, we want him back and we expect him back for several years as a player," Cronin said.

Williams, who announced his retirement last season but changed his mind and returned in mid-May this year, is noted for his ability to evaluate himself. Cronin noted this and said it will be up to Ted when he decides to call it quits.

Trippi Suffers Serious Injury

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 15 (AP)—Charley Trippi, former University of Georgia All-American and a standout halfback with the professional Chicago Cardinals for the past eight seasons, may have played his last game of football, the Times-Union said tonight.

Trippi, who was injured two weeks ago when the Cardinals lost a 43-7 exhibition game to the San Francisco 49ers at San Francisco, is in a Chicago hospital suffering from a smashed nose and a fractured skull.

Wall, Dudas Among Leaders In Daily News Golf Tourney

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15 (AP)—Douglas Higgins, 28, pro from Midland, Tex., posted a four under par 64 to become the first round leader of the $20,000 Daily News 72-holes open golf tournament today at the Cobbs Creek course.

The blond, curly-haired Higgins, who used to play basketball for Texas Wesleyan University, solved the tricky public links course so well that he was able to turn the first nine in 30 and the second 34 against par 35-35 for the 6,243 yard layout.

Higgins, in his first year as a touring pro, was credited with a new course record, since nearly all 18 holes have been overhauled.

Two Strokes

The Texas led the field of 120 by two strokes. Jerry Barber, Ryder Cup player from Los Angeles, and Bud Holsher, 24, Apple Valley, Calif., pro, were tied for second place with cards of 66.

Leo Biatetti of Willoughby, Ohio, was the only player in the 67 bracket, but nine, including Ryder Cupper Ted Kroll of Bethesda, Md.; Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa.; Palo Alto, Calif.; Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill.; and Bo Winger, Oklahoma City, posted pars of 68.

Doug Ford, the National PGA champion, needed 69 strokes while the excitable Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., chalked up 70 as did Stan Dudas, Shawnee. Dudas fired 33-37.

Jack Burke, Jr., of Klamath Lake, had a bad round after taking a three over par seven on the third. He finished with 76. Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., 1954 U. S. Amateur champion who is now a pro, soared to 78.

Grid Loop Faces Suit

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15 (AP)—The National Football League was accused today of exercising a "boycott or conspiracy" in violation of federal anti-trust laws against a one-time All-League guard.

The accusation was made by Maxwell Keith, lawyer representing William (Bill) Radovich, who starred for the Detroit Lions in 1945, in an action before the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. Radovich is appealing dismissal of his $105,000 suit against the league April 30, 1954, by the U. S. District Court.

Reasoning

Radovich, now a Los Angeles automobile dealer, originally filed his suit in July, 1949. It alleged that he had been blacklisted by the NFL when he attempted to find employment as a player-coach with the San Francisco Clippers of the now-defunct Pacific Coast League.

Cards Inflict Fifth Straight Loss On Bums

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 15 (AP)—Alex Grammas knocked in the deciding run with a sharp-hopping grounder with the bases loaded in the 12th to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 verdict and send the Brooklyn Dodgers, National League champions, down to their fifth straight defeat today.

The losing streak was the longest of the season for the Dodgers.

Stan Musial, rapping a double and homer, extended to 11 his National League record of seasons with 300 or more total bases. Musial's homer and Rip Repulski's circuit drive, which immediately followed in the third inning, enabled the National League to its all-time major league total of 1,197 home runs, set in 1953.

Sixth Pitcher

Grammas' hot single, skipping over the head of little Don Zimmer, drove in Repulski with two out in the third overtime frame, giving the Redbirds a sweep of the three-game series.

The decisive blow came off the Dodgers' sixth pitcher, Ed Roebuck, but the loser was a rookie southpaw Chuck Templeton, who faced only one batter, walking Musial to begin the home 12th.

Stroudsburg Crew Invades Lehigh

STROUDSBURG High opens the 1955 football season under a new coach tonight as John Whitehead leads the Mountaineers against Lehigh, on the latter's home field. The kickoff is scheduled to take place at 8 p. m.

The Mountaineers completed pre-season training with a double workout yesterday and are now ready to invade the home domain of the Indians, where they will clash under the lights in a Lehigh Valley League contest.

Whitehead yesterday reported that his club is in good condition and in an excellent frame of mind. "Lack of experience has me worried," was the only negative approach to the opening encounter displayed by the former East Stroudsburg State Teachers College star who has taken over the head coaching duties from the retired Jerry Stulgaitis. Stulgaitis will coach junior high football at Stroudsburg this year.

Only one uncertainty existed in Whitehead's mind as far as the starting lineup is concerned and that problem becomes bigger each day as Ron Stopp and Mark Newman wage a terrific struggle for the quarterback post.

Whitehead said that he would wait until just before the opening whistle before choosing Stopp or Newman, both juniors.

Otherwise the backfield will shape up with Bob Phillips at left half; Co-Captain Don Hayes, right half, and freshman Bill Bolich at fullback. Hayes and Phillips are seniors.

Bob Armbrage, senior; Jerry Simanchick, senior; Doug Nichols, senior and Ronnie Ejdys, senior, are almost certain to see action against the highly regarded Indians.

Co-Captain Phil Newman, hampered with an injury, may see limited service at guard against the host club which is reportedly a heavy organization through the line.

Roger Lane and Ronnie Hallet, both seniors, will probably be pressed into service in the backfield, while Larry Buzzard will spell Barthold at center. Buzzard is a junior.

The Mountaineers are scheduled to depart from Stroudsburg High School at 5:30 p. m. They will feature their new uniforms of silver pants and maroon jerseys in the opening encounter.

Stroudsburg will play host to Emmaus High next Friday night at Gordon Giffels Field.

Lightweight Contenders Clash Tonight

DETROIT, Sept. 15 (AP)—A pair of promising young lightweight contenders—Frankie Ryff of New York and Joey Lopez of Sacramento, Calif.—mix it tomorrow night in a nationally televised 10-rounder in Olympia Stadium. (10 p. m., EDT). Ryff, 23, voted as 1954's "Rookie of the Year" by New York's boxing writers, ranks fourth on the list of contenders for Wallace (Bud) Smith's lightweight title.

Win

Lopez, 24, who boasts a victory this year over featherweight champion Sandy Saddler, ranks eighth. Ryff's record is 18-1-0. Lopez has a 21-4-2 record.

Yankee Skipper Cheerful Over Chances In Flag Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—Casey Stengel, Al Lopez and Marty Marion, respective managers of the teams still embroiled in the three-way struggle for the American League pennant, faced the final 19 days of the season today in varying moods.

Stengel was cheerful and chipper, Lopez thoughtful and worried and Marion hopeful and defiant.

"I see where we're still very much in the picture," chorled Stengel, whose Yankees closed to within one game of the Indians yesterday following Cleveland's 3-2 loss to its jinx team in Washington. "I've been reading for the past two weeks where those two other fellows (Lopez and Marion) have been predicting the flag. So I'm surprised to see that neither team has won it yet."

"Well," he added with a wink and a grin, "if they don't want it, maybe we'll take it."

Serious Mood

Lopez, in a much more serious mood, acknowledged that last night's loss makes the job much tougher but took comfort in the knowledge that the Yankees must play two more games and win both to overtake his Indians.

"We had a fine road trip, winning seven of nine," he said, "but picked up only a half game on the Yankees. We're counting on the Yankees to lose a game here and there, but they've been playing good ball, too. We'll just have to keep on winning, that's all."

Four games behind with only eight to play, Marion still refuses to count his Chicago White Sox out of it.

"No, sir," he said, "we won't concede until we're mathematically eliminated."

"Remember," he pointed out, "We've still got two games with Cleveland, both in our park. Then we play six with Kansas City. Anything can happen."

AP Scribe Picks Miami Over Tech

By Will Grimsley

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 15 (AP)—What better way to probe the first big football weekend than from a secluded pine grove just off the 18th green of the picturesque James River Course of the Country Club of Virginia?

Quiet please—man at work: California over Pitt—Mike Casey, Paul Larson's replacement at quarterback, and the biggest line west of the Rockies should be able to stop Pitt's brilliant Corby Salvatore. Too soon for Johnny Michelsen to get the Pitts reorganized.

Georgia Tech over Miami (Fla.)—One of the year's toughest battles in Dixie, Coach Andy Gustafson has a loaded team at Miami. But Tech has Bobby Dodd and Grant Field. Miami: Tougher at home.

UCLA over Texas A&M—The UCLA's are picked as the class of the nation. Bear Bryant's Aggies have potential but are caught too early in this one.

Mississippi over Georgia—To hear Jim Tatum talk, he has 10 All-Americans and another player only good enough to make all-conference. The Terrapins should win easily.

Mississippi over Georgia—The Rebels have more than half of last year's conference champion team back. Georgia is rebuilding but lacks a go-go quarterback.

The others: Friday: Chattanooga over Jacksonville State, Furman over Newberry.

Saturday: Midwest—Wichita over Arizona State at Tempe, North Dakota over Hamline, Kansas State over Wyoming, Texas Christian over Kansas, South—Tulane over VMI, South Carolina over Wake Forest, Florida State over North Carolina State, Clemson over Presbyterian, Kentucky over LSU, Virginia Tech over Wake Forest.

SOUTHWEST—Arkansas over Tulsa, Baylor over Hardin-Simmons, Houston over Montana, New Mexico over New Mexico A&M, Texas over Texas Tech, FAR WEST—Washington over Idaho, Nebraska over Hawaii, Stanford over College of the Pacific.

Stroudsburg Band Members To Be Guests Of Lehigh

STROUDSBURG HIGH SCHOOL'S band won't play at tonight's opening football game between the Mountaineers and Lehigh, at Lehigh, but each member of the musical organization will be admitted free of charge it was announced yesterday by John Pyle, band director.

Bangor Lifts Lid On 1955 Grid Season

BANGOR—Bangor High lifts the lid on its football season today when the Slaters play host to Palmerston High here at Memorial Park. The kickoff is scheduled to take place at 8 p. m.

The Slaters completed their pre-season drills under the watchful eye of Coach Granville "Granny" Evans yesterday and are ready for their initial outing.

Lineup

Bangor's starting backfield will feature Dale Miller at fullback and Jack Stenlake and Bob Finelli at the halfback posts, while the quarterback slot is still a toss-up between J. L. "Jabby" Williams and Jimmy Freeman.

In the line Sammy Heard and Anthony Ruggiero will anchor the club at the end posts, while Charley Woolley and Kermit LaBar will handle the tackle posts. Bob Butz and veteran Dick Marinelli are listed for starting guard berths and Don Evans will open at the center spot.

No Expense For Tickets

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—The eight American League race hasn't denied the money departments of the contending teams so far as preparations for the World Series are concerned.

It is not generally known but all World Series expenses, including the printing of tickets, refunding of monies, mailing and postage will be paid for by the office of the commissioner of baseball.

Estimate

It is estimated that the commissioner's office will be paying between $25,000 to $30,000 this season for Series expenses that could have been avoided by an early clinching in the American League.

Mrs. Shafer Bows In Club Match

A NEW women's golf champion was assured at Glen Brook Country Club this season when Mrs. Mae Norrell, Tatamy, scored a five-and-four verdict over Mrs. V. Shafer.

Mrs. Shafer had won the Glen Brook title for the past five years.

Same Story

Harold Storm, the defending title holder in the men's division, also suffered defeat in the club championship struggle this season. Mrs. Norrell will meet Cynthia Watt in fourth round activity.

Marshall Bescher

Former Local Star Leads Army Club

FOUNTAINBLEAU, France — Marshall "Skeets" Bescher, former baseball and basketball star at Pocono High School, is currently leading the Fountainbleau "Foresters" baseball team, and Army club, with an average of .642.

Bescher, playing coach of the "Foresters," is currently dividing his time between first base and the pitching mound, just as he did while a member of the Annapolis entry in the Pocono Mountains League back in 1946.

This is the second straight season in which Bescher has served as coach of the team.

Spain: Bescher's club, only the third American team to ever play in Spain, recently swept a two-game series from the Spanish All-Stars in Madrid.

"Skeets," currently assigned to Special Activities, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bescher, Henryville, and the brother of Al Dave and Jim Bescher, all well known dinermen in Monroe County.

Bescher is due to return to the United States in December.

Select List Declines On Profit-Taking

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—The recently strong blue chips absorbed profit-taking today at reduced prices and weighed the stock market down. Prices were lower on average for the first time in nearly three weeks.

Railroads performed rather well and ended higher. Aircrafts made progress.

Steels were down throughout the sessions, and there were moderate losses in the chemicals, oils, and motors.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined 30 cents at $179.60. In the seven previous sessions, the average scored new record highs.

Industrials Weak

The industrial component of the market was off 80 cents while rails gained 30 cents and utilities were down 20 cents.

Out of the 1,177 individual issues traded, 477 advanced and 455 declined. There were 64 new highs and 9 new lows for the year.

Volume mounted to 2,890,000 shares, best since early July. The total was boosted by heavy trading in some low priced shares. Yesterday's business came to 2,570,000 shares.

Bentley Consolidated Mining was the day's most active issue up 1/4 at 1 1/2 with 277,600 shares traded. One block of 117,500 shares went at 1 1/4.

The American Stock Exchange was mixed on volume of 790,000 shares as compared with 870,000 shares traded yesterday. Corporate bonds were higher. U.S. Government issues over the counter were steady.

Playing Taps Proves Way Of Life For Army Bugler

By Arthur Edson
WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—To most of us, taps is only a haunting melody. To M. Sgt. Victor A. Christensen, it's a way of life.

Come February, Christensen will be the first man to sound out a full 50 years in the famed U.S. Army Band. For the last eight of those years he also has served with the special 19-piece band that plays at Arlington National Cemetery.

Special Mouthpiece

"You know, I've been trying to find out how many times I've played taps in my career," he said. "and I can't even guess. But you may get an idea from this: So far, I've played taps at 134 funerals this year. And I'm down for another one today."

In addition, when distinguished visitors visit Arlington to pay their respects at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, taps usually is played. It's a source of pride for Christensen that on four Armistice Days he was manning the bugle.

Since these occasions often are broadcast, and since he has played taps on many a radio show, his work probably has had a wider audience than many a better known virtuoso.

Nor does the Army stop there. It lends him to the Daughters of the American Revolution, to be official bugler for their convention. And one of his last official acts will be an appearance either at the New Zealand or Australian embassy on April 25 for their joint observance of "Anzac Day."

Can't Recall Number

"They have a reveille," Christensen said, "the sounds a little like our 'lights out.'"

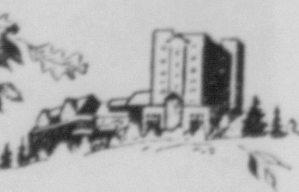

Since he has devoted his life to it, it's surprising to learn Christensen doesn't have the mouth for the job. He was ailing in his youth, and an overly enthusiastic dentist pulled eight front teeth in an ineffective attempt to help him.

As a result, his jaw is recessed a mile, he needed a special waiver to get into the Army, and he was able to play only because of a made-to-order mouthpiece.

Polio Season Tapering Off, Report Shows

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—The 1955 polio season apparently has started to taper off.

The U. S. Public Health Service today reported 2,669 cases throughout the country last week. This was a drop of about 2 per cent under the corrected total of 2,668 the previous week. Although some states had increases, a Public Health Service spokesman said: "It appears that on the whole we are on the down grade."

Peak In August

The year's polio peak — 2,289 cases — came in the week ended Aug. 27. In all, the 48 states reported 18,215 cases, 6,229 of them paralytic, between April 1, the start of the polio year, and Sept. 11. This compared with 21,324 cases of which 7,793 were paralytic, in the corresponding 1954 period.

The Health Service said 554 polio cases, 213 of them paralytic, have been confirmed among the more than 6½ million persons — almost all children — who have received Salk polio vaccine since it was licensed April 12.

Unity Behind Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—The National Automobile Dealers Assn. plans a meeting here in October aimed at "unity among all automotive and allied groups on a single method for financing a federal aid highway program."

Loses License, Arrested Driving Home From Court

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 15 (AP)—If you get your drivers license revoked in court, can you legally drive your car home?

No, the Essex County Court ruled yesterday in upholding a verdict against Bernard R. Wolfe, 37, who was fined $15 and had his license suspended for 15 days June 27 on a careless driving charge.

He promptly walked out and started to drive home. A policeman stopped him and returned him to court, where Wolfe was fined $100 car home, and sentenced to seven days in jail.

JOB FOR A FALL GUY

THE ENVY of nearly every kid in the neighborhood is Clyde Lamb, a chimneyologist from Cleveland. Lamb, you see, can make a 400-foot high chimney fall along a dotted line. In some 50 years of planning, he's destroyed more than 400 chimneys, either by making them topple in one big blow or by carefully taking them down brick by brick. When it's a hurry-up job, Lamb supervises cutting away of one section of the base, then propping that section up, cutting away the remaining section of the base and finally igniting the lumber that holds base up. Then chimney topples.

Now she's heading for a smashup in the factory yard.

Only job left now for the chimney toppers is to clean up the bricks that are in yard.

Interviewer Finds Author Busy At Work On 'Something New' During Tamiment Stay

By Leonard Randolph

FOR A LITERARY giant James T. Farrell was just about the most comfortable guy I've seen. Also shorter than I'd thought he'd be.

Ben Blaker, who is a good public relations man up at Camp Tamiment, and I walked over to the white house outside the Tamiment gates. We walked in the back door and into the living room and there was this man in his shirt sleeves sitting at the desk.

When he peered up over his glasses and saw us standing there he put his left hand back on the top of the chair and hoisted himself up quickly. After we shook hands he made a fast gesture at the press camera and said: You going to take my picture? I'd better go shave. And he laughed and remembered he had his shoes off but we said why be uncomfortable and sat down and started to talk.

French Attitudes

There was about an hour when the talk was pretty much involved with current events and the situation in France. Farrell has spent a lot of time in Europe and most of that in France. He has some decided opinions on the French attitude on such trivial things as paying taxes (they don't believe in it much) and wine subsidies (the government pays the peasants to make wine that nobody will buy and then the surplus is dumped down the drain).

After a bit we got around to literature and modern writing and Farrell's opinions in that field. Not that he goes around passing opinions on other people's writing. He doesn't. It took some specific questions to get answers on those subjects.

We started out with William Faulkner and Farrell reached forward and picked another cigarette out of the red pack and lit it. He chain smokes. But not the way some people do, lighting one cigarette off of the burning coal of the one they're going to put out. Farrell puts out the cigarette first, then takes another one from the pack and lights it with a match.

Comments on Hemingway

So he took a short drag on the cigarette and sat back on the couch and looked briefly across the room. He had liked "Light In August" and "Pylon" very much, he said in answer to the question. He hadn't read the latest one ("A Farewell to Arms") so he couldn't comment on that one.

So far as Hemingway was concerned Farrell thought his early short stories had been great — "They had a fine power of suggestiveness and they were very poetic." His opinion of the novels wasn't so high and this was especially true of "The Old Man and the Sea," the last Hemingway book and the one that won him, ostensibly, the Nobel Prize. Maybe it was because it was a little pretentious, he said.

Farrell thinks Leonard Bishop's first novel, "Down All Your Streets," was a fine one. And one of the finest books in recent years, he said, was "The Heart Is A Lonely Hunter" by Carson McCullers, a poetic, haunted-prose study of neurosis in a small Southern town.

One of the current literary fads, "Bonjour Tristesse" by Françoise Sagan, he read in the original French, he said, and he didn't care much for it. It was pretty thin.

Praises Salinger

He has high praise for one new writer (the arbitrary limit set for the phrase "new writer" by the questioner was between the years 1935-55) on the scene. That would be J. D. Salinger.

Salinger has written a novel called "Catcher In The Rye" which was very successful with the critics and in the stores. But he's also the author of some penetrating short stories. Like "For Mees—With Love and Squalor" or "Just Before the War With the Eskimos".

For the second time in the conversation, Farrell's mind turned to Isaac Babel, the Russian short-story writer who was imprisoned by the Communists, whose name was obliterated from life in Russia and from the pages of the encyclopedias. Babel is one of Farrell's personal giants and he seemed happy that his short stories were being published in America.

FARRELL AT WORK — In the living room of the Josephson home at Tamiment, James T. Farrell makes notes on a new short story. He has a new novel started and has just finished an article for Sports Illustrated on the Brooklyn Dodgers. (Staff Photo By Randolph)

Babel's stories are being issued now. It took them a long time to make the Atlantic crossing and there was a tinge of bitterness in the way Farrell noted that they had finally got here.

And what about Farrell himself? Somehow the talk never quite got around to James T. Farrell except in passing and then Farrell would turn the conversation back the other way.

Looks To Future

One thing was evident: Farrell is no man existing in the past or in the shadow of his own success.

During the thirties and the early forties, Farrell wrote a string of novels. Among the most successful were the "Studs" series and the books about "Danny O'Neil". Then there was "Bernard Clare" and "This Man and This Woman".

In between these — and since that time — there have been short stories in a kind of temper-controlled torrent. He's finished about two volumes of them in the past year. And he's through the first draft of a new novel.

He works quickly, it seemed, as quickly as his mind responds to a question or a sudden thought. That afternoon he had been working at the desk when we came in, writing in longhand in a notebook with a mottled black and grey cardboard cover, almost like a composition book in school.

When he talks, Farrell's words come with decisive clarity. But his voice is surprisingly soft — so low and drily humorous that, when you're sitting at a lunch table with him and there are others talking, you have to lean forward to hear what he's saying.

Patient Man

There is a sense of immediacy in the way he talks — calm and very responsive. He has the air of a patient man who knows exactly what he's going to do when he gets back to work.

There was some discussion, again, of "Studs Lonigan" and the fact that the book is about to be turned into a movie by United Artists. Is the script finished yet?

Farrell said he didn't know. No one had talked with him about that and it wouldn't do them much good if they did.

"I don't care anything about working on something that's old like Studs," he said. "I'd rather spend my time on something new."

Whatever the "something new" might be, the comment was from the mind and intelligence of a true writer. Once it's done, it's done.

Stories To Come

Tomorrow there will be more stories. And there are as many stories as there are men and events and time to observe them in.

At times you could sense a story being written, silently, behind the thick lenses and the slate-grey intensity of Farrell's eyes as you walked along the roads of Tamiment.

You could even hear the click of punctuation now and then at the end of an imagined phrase.

Group To Make Overseas Study

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—A House Civil Service subcommittee will leave Friday to study U.S. government personnel policies affecting some 8,500 U.S. citizens employed abroad. The group will inquire into such things as lodging, meal and travel allowances and schooling.

The subcommittee is headed by Rep. Morrison (D-La.) and will include Representatives Tumulty (D-N.J.), Harden (R-Ind.), Cretella (R-Conn.) and Broyhill (R-Va.).

If 1935 death rates still prevailed, about 230,000 U. S. infants would die in their first year every year compared to about 100,000 actual deaths.
